“ When we were little, her daddy lived in Hammond and had a big pool that we would swim in for hours and then play in her playroom downstairs. I believe it was his 1st Semi and he took us for a ride in it and we thought we were so cool. We would ride our 10 speeds through Purdue university up and down the stairs and even inside the building until we got fussed at. I remember that we spent the night with her mom and we were eating ice cream and then we were playing and was laughing so hard that we peed our pants and was trying to change them before her mom found out but it wouldn't of done any good because we couldn't stop laughing. It innocence that we had was something that I wish we always kept. Susie as I always called her was one of the smartest people that I knew. No matter the question she knew the answer 90% of the time. It was insane!! I remember the love she had for her children was incredible and if she could help it, no one would mess with them. I remember she called me to tell me that she became a grandma before me and although I was happy for her I was jealous because I wanted one. She of course laughed at me and I told her to not laugh too hard so she doesn't pee like when we were younger. She took me to work with her at the dog shop and taught me how to give them a good washing. And then again she laughed at me because the darn dog soaked me from head to toe. She taught me a lot about a lot of things. We would talk for hours and I wish that had never changed. I will always love you my SUSIE Q. 💔🙏
